ADVENTURES AFTER A SHAVE .- From the Evansville Journal. |-A worthy citizen undertook to trim his beard a short time since, and by a slip of the seissors spoiled the cut. trimmed a little more, and still more but it would look lop sided, so he went to the barber's and got shaved for the first time in twelve years. He was very busy and business detained him in his office until a late hour of the night, and when he went home he found that his family had retired. This was not an unusual occurrence, so he silently entered by means of a pass key, sought his own room and undressed without lighting the gas. He got partly into bed, when his wife astonished him by uttering a loud and prolonged scream. He was very much alarmed for her, and feared she had lost her reason. He implored her to tell him what was the matter.

At the sound of his voice she screamed "Oh! Edward, come quick! and save me."
"I am here, dear," said he, but she only screamed the louder at the words.

He sprang out of bed, and had just struck a light, when his brother-in-law, a muscular sixfooter, rushed into the room and fired a revolver at his head. Luckily it missed, but his fist did not, for in a minute a paled-faced man, with a long white robe, staggered under a blow that doubled the size of his organ of compari-

"My God!" exclaimed the husband, "are you all crazy?" "Bless my heart!" exclaimed the muscular brother-in-law, "if it ain't Ned himself. Why what on earth tempted you to get yourself up in that style?"

"What style?" asked the much abused husband, as he rubbed the growing lumps on his forehead.

"Why, when did you shave?" It was all clear to him then. His wife had put up her hand in the dark, and meeting the shaved face of a man took her husband for an intruder. She recognized his voice at first, but the second time he spoke her terror was, too law rushed in he saw a thin faced man with a slightly bald head, in a long white night robe, and in his rage at the supposed outrage fired at him, missed, and then knocked him down with his fist. Fortunately his voice saved the husband from a second shot. His wife recovered from her faint only to faint again at the recognition of her husband's shaven face and the pistol shot. He finally got to bed and slept very well until morning, when "the baby," a child of about two years of age, approached the bed, as he had been used to do, and frightened at the sight of of a stranger, ran screaming from the room. Tripping on the carpet the poor child received a severe bump on its little head. Mat ters were finally straightened up at home, but on the street his friends passed without speak ing, and at the bank he was not only refused payment of a draft, but threatened with arrest FASHIONABLE TAILORS. for signing his own name in endorsing it. Of course a little explanation brought the various affairs all right, but it took so much time to explain, and for the contusion on his forehead to get well that the aforesaid citizen vows he will never shave again, as he considers it a habit dangerous to peace and even to life. PLEASANT FOR "JOHNNY." - Tickle-Tackle House, January 23, 1872. dear Ma. I wright two tell you i am very retched and my chillyblains is worser again. I have not made any proggress and don't think I shall. i am sorry to be off so much expense but I do not think schulle is of any good. One off the fellows has taken the crown hout off my new hat for a target. i said you would not like it. He has also borrowed my watch to make a water wheel with the works but it won't act. Me and him have tried to put the works back but we think there is some wheels missing as it won't fit. I hope Matilda's cold is better. I am glad she is not at schule. I think I have got consumsion. The boys at this place are not gentlemen but I suppose you did not know that when you sent me. I will try not to get bad habits. The trowsers have wore out at the nees. I think the tailor must have cheated you. the buttons have also come off and they are tore in the back. I don't think the food is good, but i should not mind if i was stronger, the piece i send you is off the beef we had sunday but on other days it is more stringgy. there are black beedless in the kitchen and sometimes they cook them in the dinner which can't be wholesome when you are not strong. I one of the boys has tamed one not a cooked a rawone and it will dance when you whistle "down in a coal mine" which makes him think of his happy home. Dear Ma I hope you and my dear papa and sisters are enjoying of yourselves and do not mind me being so uncomfortable because I do not think i shall last long.

I am Yours Affectionate P. S.-Please send me some money as i owe 8 pence. If you can not spare it i think i can borrow of a boy who is going to leave at the half quarter and then he won't ask for it back praps you would not like me to be under a obligashion as his parents is trades people and i think you deal at their shop, he lent me some last half and i think he told them at the shop. i did not mention it as dessay they have put it in your bill .- Judy.

answerable for this.: "Every trade has its tricks, but for vain tricks and dark ways the grocers-that is the ostensible grocers-of Conneautville-and vicinity carry off the palm. To thoroughly understand the tricks practiced, by these merchants it must first be explained that there is a prohibitory liquor law in force in Conveautville, the provisions of which extend for two miles on all sides of the town, to evade which, the merchants, who were wont in days of yore to dispense the ardent, have gone into the pumpkin business. It is a fact that the market at Conneautville for this delicious vegetable is buoyant, though firm. Bibulous individuals are generally the purchasers. The customers are plenty, and each frequently carries away two or three pumpkins. When ensconced in a secluded place they remove a plug from the pumpkin, and presto chauge! and appears the neck of a pint bottle filled with whiskey. The vessel is emptied, demolished, and the pumpkin returned for fluture use. From this sample of the way the local autic.
